Caddy Grows Whiskers

Ho, Hum! 'Tis Sea Serpent Time Again

And Glares At Witness

British United Press.
VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 9.—Victoria's sea "serpent" has aged 20 years in the last four. He has even grown whiskers. Cecil Burgess and Norman Ingram said today that they had seen the serpent off Rocky Point near the British Columbia capital.

Said Burgess: "He was only 40 feet near. His head resembled a cross between that of a camel and a walrus. He had long—very long—whiskers, and glared at us."

There didn't seem to be much doubt about it that it was the same serpent reported by fishermen several years ago. At least, except for the aged appearance and the whiskers, it answered the same general description—the walrus—camel head and a body two feet thick and of undetermined length.

Marching Troops, Moving Machines Must Decide War

Here is the first of three dispatches by the foreign news editor of the British United Press tracing the march of Man across Europe in terms of what it has meant to the people and governments involved in the conflict—EDITOR.

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
British United Press Foreign News Editor

This war has brought many surprises. It has shattered many predictions. Perhaps most significant of all, it has dwarfed the towering personalities who dominated the pre-fighting period of today's struggle. The men who enacted a day-by-day story as bizarre as any disaster that ever changed the course of world history, have been pushed aside by more powerful forces.

A year ago the people of many lands read their future in the decisions of a few men whose hands fumbled papers at a state across a conference table at Munich, Geneva, Godesberg.

Today, the Nazi U-boat—not the voice of Adolf Hitler—made the blackest headlines. Today the guns of the British fleet speak in tones more commanding than Neville Chamberlain.

For the present and probably for as long as there are battle fronts, the thinking of marching men and moving machines dwarfs out the words from chancelleries and thrones; men in the mass become the power that eventually—regardless of the "slow motion" war—on the Western Front—must decide the outcome. The future of nations depends now less on diplomatic skill.

U.S. Senate Passes Deportation Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The United States Senate passed Monday a bill, approved by the house of representatives, providing for the deportation of alien spies and saboteurs.

World Seas Cleared of German Shipping

Prime Minister Chamberlain

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Prime Minister Chamberlain in a militant address to the Empire today declared Britain's aid to Finland "will be no more formally," and said that events in the war with Germany thus far were "merely preliminary" to the main struggle to come.

"It is only on the sea," he said, "that the war may be said to be in full operation." The prime minister declared that the British-French alliance should become permanent in the interests of "peaceful reconstruction" after the war is over.

For 15 minutes he reviewed the progress of the hostilities to date in an address at a Lord Mayor's luncheon at the Mansion House. It was Mr. Chamberlain's first public appearance of the year, a year which he said would be a fatal one in the history of the world.

He said the "unbelievable" quiet of the first months of the war could only be interpreted as "the quiet of the calm before the storm."

Speaking of Finland, Mr. Chamberlain said:

And now it is the turn of Finland to be attacked by the power (Soviet Russia) with whom Germany made an unholy pact and for which she was the example of aggression. Finland... is fighting in a general campaign.

CHAMBERLAIN RALLIES HIS COUNTRYMEN

British Empire Is Warned That "Grim" Warfare Lies Ahead

By WALLACE CARROLL
British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain rallied the British Empire to more vigorous prosecution of the war today in a speech warning that "grim" warfare lies ahead, applauding the attitude of resistance to the visit toward international relations, and forecasting some future form of European collaboration or federation.

"The powers of wickedness will fight to the death," he said, "against the strength of Allied arms, the unity of Allied resolution and the moral approval of 'All who realize that the fate of civilization is bound up with the conflict.'"

Chamberlain's speech marked the beginning of a general campaign.

32 MEN ABOARD LIGHTSHIP HIT BY NAZI SHOTS

By SIDNEY WILLIAMS
British United Press Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Renewed German air activity over British waters under protection of a heavy mist resulted in five attacks on the British lightship, the H.M.S. 32.

In addition to attacks on shipping the air ministry said, German planes flew over the Firth of Tay and the Firth of Clyde.

Greatest damage was done when the planes attacked the lightship, the H.M.S. 32.

Amalgams waited at an east coast port for victims of the raid. The German planes used machine guns and shot down the lightship.

German submarines were also active in the North Sea.

Lack of Soldier Toys

Now He's Conscientious Objector

Turns B.C. Man Pacifist

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Norman A. O. Robinson, an insurance clerk who claimed to be a native of British Columbia, was registered as a conscientious objector today providing he remained at his present occupation.

At the end of the last war, Robinson said the tribunal, "there was a movement in British Columbia to 'disarm the cursers'."

The idea being that if children were brought up with the peaceful toys only, they would naturally develop into members of a society which would refuse to participate in war.

A resident of England since 1928, Robinson claimed he was a Canadian and objected that the Act under which he was called up was passed prior to Canada's declaration of war.

OTTAWA PAY REGULATIONS UNDER FIRE

Rules Governing Payment Of Dependent Allowance To Get Overhaul

By GRANT DEXTER
Editorial Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—From Winnipeg and from almost every city in Canada, complaints are being received by the national defense department concerning the regulation governing the payment of a dependent allowance in persons other than the wife or a child of a soldier.

It is not possible to generalize about this regulation. None of the pay regulations has caused more trouble to the department than this one. Indeed, it is going to be re-considered, in detail. Apparently this is the job for which the services of Arthur McNamara, of Winnipeg, are being sought. Almost certainly it will be revised, but in the meantime it is being enforced. In the event of revision, the new regulation presumably would be made retroactive to the beginning of the war.

ALBERTA HOUSE WILL OPEN ON FEBRUARY 15

Alberta legislature will be called together for its third session at 3 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 15, Premier Abernethy, Tuesday, stated that instructions had been issued to prepare the order-in-council calling the house together. Following passage of the order, a proclamation will be issued by Hon. Ernest C. Manning, provincial secretary, said.

This will be the ninth session of the present legislature, which was elected on August 22, 1935. It will be the fifth regular session of the house since the last election, while four special sessions have been held. It is expected that this will be the last session of the present house, and that a provincial general election will be held this year.

The premier said that the seasonal legislative program is expected to be light, and that the budget would be presented to the House later in the session.

The session is expected to last from four to six weeks.

A pre-session caucus of Social Credit members of the legislature will be called two or three days before the House opens.

The finding, it is noted, kept the German mine fields were filled with "dummies."

Farm Incomes

Recalling the low prices obtained for wheat, many western readers must have been surprised to learn from figures compiled by the Bureau of Statistics that the total value of Canadian farm production was larger last year than in any year since 1930. Field crops showed a gain of more than $90,000,000 over those of the preceding year. Livestock registered a very substantial advance, while the wool crop was worth nearly 25 per cent more.

The total of new wealth produced ran to $1,333,545,000. There are about 740,000 farms in Canada, large and small. The average production per farm for the year works out at around $1,800. If this does not seem a large gross income for a farm, it must be remembered that many of the so-called "farmers" comprise only a few acres each, and from these the farmer is expected to make his income.

Both in the aggregate and the average, these figures compare favorably with years when Canada has been unquestionably prosperous. That improvement in conditions was not due to any special cause may have been because a large part of the farm proceeds of the year had to go to pay debts incurred in the depressed seasons. Current business was correspondingly less than it would have been.

Making Up the Shortage

Alberta Conservatives, who were rather critical at their Red Deer convention because it had not been possible to supply every enlisted man promptly with a uniform, should be interested in facts given out as to the shortage of uniforms made in this matter under direction of the War Supply Board.

Canadian industrial establishments, it is stated, are now turning out supplies at the rate of 10,000 sweaters jackets per week, 20,000 blankets, 13,000 pairs of boots, 13,000 pairs of gloves, 7,000 suits, 12,000 pairs of socks, 19,000 suits of underwear, 3,500 great coats. To reach this scale of output, it is noted, the peacetime production of gloves has been expanded tenfold, and blankets and sweaters turned out three times as fast as in pre-war days.

There is assurance in this that Canadian industry has not balked at falling down on the job, but has speeded up to a thoroughly creditable way, and that the almost total lack of such supplies when war broke out is being rapidly overtaken.

It is of course very regrettable that there were not complete outfits of clothing and blankets on hand for every man as soon as he was enrolled. But unfortunately Hitler failed to send along advance notice that he intended to start a war at the first of September—or any other time. And from their course in parliament on the Bren machine gun contract the Opposition were not at all anxious that the Government should tie up its money in advance in war supplies which might not be needed.

The Sooner the Better

In peace-time it is no direct concern of Canadians who may be, or may cease to be, or may become, British's secretary of state for war. But as Canadian soldiers are to fight in the Allied armies, and the Dominion is involved in the present war financially, economically and politically to the limit, it is not surprising that when she applied for a ballot this could not be denied her.

Carol To Stalin

King Carol of Rumania made a speech on Saturday which was very plainly meant for the ears of Stalin. To give point to it he spoke in Bessarabia, the province Rumania got from Russia at the close of the general war and which Russia wants to get back. The subject of the speech was that Carol did not take trouble to soften his language was that Rumania will fight and can fight successfully if Moscow launches its threatened drive against it.

No doubt Rumania and its King have gained confidence from the spectacle the King gave when making his tour of the Red army. Allowing for that, Carol would hardly have thrown down the gauntlet unless he had assurance of backing if the attack should come. That he expects it to come is suggested by the orders issued to Rumanian merchant ships to stay in harbor while Russia's Black Sea fleet manœuvres in this untimely season.

Italy and Hungary went into a diplomatic huddle during the week, when Count Ciano was reported to have advised Hungary to "modify" its demands against Rumania and help ward off the Russian threat to the Balkan area. General Rumania has long-standing traditional associations with Italy, and when the Count says complete agreement was reached with Hungary it may be inferred the agreeing was done by the Hungarians, willingly or otherwise.

While Mussolini rejected the proposal some time ago to form a Balkan "bloc" against the Russian menace, the rejection did not alter the geographic fact that Italy cannot afford to let Moscow invade the Balkans and establish its dominance over that area. Carol knew this of course. But he has known it all along. His speech on Saturday was not about the speech of a man who had just got direct and definite assurances from Rome.

Two Edmonton men of long residence passed away at the week-end. Mr. G. H. Graydon was a pioneer businessman, ranked among the oldest of Old Timers, and known very widely through the whole of northern and central Alberta. Mr. C. R. Morrison came to Edmonton later but was equally well known in the city. Both will be missed by large numbers of friends and business acquaintances.

After all the gloomy forecasts, the threatening return show that Manitoba had an average of about 14 bushels of wheat to the acre, and that the total wheat crop of the province of about seven millions will be for export. ### The Passing Show

By MAX FREDMAN

The biggest article in 1939 was told, the Burlington Club at Wisconsin has decided by Frank F. Norton, of Toledo, Ohio. He won the award for this gem:

"Speaking of corn-busking, Paw had ten planks arranged vertically on his trucking wagon and tuned them to the musical scale. He started us boys out by teaching us to keep a steady stream of ears in the air, and thus to play slow easy selections as 'Alesie in the Deep' and 'Onward, Christian Soldiers'! It wasn't long until we had improved enough to play 'Darktown Strutters' Ball' and fast bugle calls. That fall Paw and I took the place of the seven best in the country's annual band contest, and won first prize with a masterpiece of bandgaw music, our own duff arrangement of 'Chopsticks'."

Now this is a pretty good one. Unlike the lies of dictators, it hurts no one. It robs no nation of its freedom. It simply is an innocent exercise in carefree fancy.

But the Burlington Club should have known that Norton's lie is not his own invention but rather is a skilful variation of one of the classical untruths of history.

Do you remember the Baron Munchausen tale of the posthumous swim labored on a bitterly cold day to extract music from his instrument, but without success? Yet, when the story came into the country's ears, the instrument was hung on the wall, the frozen music in the posthumous warmed up, and merry tunes amused the diners during their stay at the table.

That club at Burlington exists to foster the study and appreciation of the lie told neither for profit, hatred or revenge, but rather for its own sake. But its members must learn the hard way how can their wives ever believe even an honest story they try out to explain why they were late coming home.

Rome, city of eternal memories, is being agitated now by the report that the ruins of the Colosseum, built by Cleopatra have been discovered. That glumous and the Egyptians cast a spell over the mind of the conqueror Shakespeare called "the noblest man that ever lived" the "idea of the times" and whom the middle GLAMOR GIRL ages regarded with reverence as one of the indirect architects of the Universal Church. Subsequently was no ordinary woman tricked out in expensive tinsel, like most modern debutantes. Yet, under the enchantment of her charms, he was drawn into a dangerous months in Egypt while storms and tempests which threatened his personal safety gathered relentlessly on the Roman horizon.

Cleopatra had more beauty than virtue. She fathered a son, Cæsarion, upon the Roman ruler. Augustus branded him as an impostor and put him to death. But little men, anxious to compensate themselves for their own frailty by casting aspersions upon the great, have been ready to regard this blot upon Caesar's fame as a stain that must not be expunged.

Caesar sickened swiftly of the queen, once he found himself master of the world with Rome obedient to his every caprice. #### Misuse of Words

Of all the words in the English language that are constantly used improperly, the word "transparent" probably takes the rank. In fact so generally is this word used improperly that it and when correctly used most people would regard it as a mistake.

The word "transparent" does not mean "look place," although the average man thinks it does and makes use of it that way.

According to the Oxford dictionary and other English dictionaries agree—"transparent" means literally to breathe or exhale through the skin, but it adds this significant note: "misused for to occur—happen." To transparent in other words means to perish.—Toronto Telegram.

Creating a Mood

As soon as a totalitarian Government is set up, in any country, it requires the individual citizen to submit his mind and will entirely to the State. And the best way of ensuring that he shall do this is to do him with propaganda into a condition of patriotic intoxication. He must be made to worship his leader and to believe in the gloriously expansive destiny of his country. Totalitarianism has to create this mood in order to maintain itself—and, as a result, once created, has to be satisfied. One moral of Russia's tactics against Finland is that just and humane relations between nations can never be developed from social systems, whatever their political color, which deny the rights and destroy the integrity of the individual human being.—Yorkshire Post.

"Carry On and Dread Nought"

The losses suffered by the Navy, "which has been so many days at sea," are not, however, necessarily higher than those of the merchant service, and the assurance is specifically drawn of note that there has been no exception to the rule of public utility in the losses of shipping by enemy action. Mr. Churchill is justified in concluding that the British people can be trusted with the truth, and nothing but the truth, which is a good deal more than the rulers of Nazi Germany dare say of their own people, carefully protected from shock as they are by the deluge of the Goebbels inventions. But it is well that, in hearing good tidings, the British people should be reminded of the much greater efforts that the watchword of the nation should be that of the Royal Navy—"Carry on and dread nought." The exhortation could not be bettered.—Daily Telegraph and Morning Post (London).

Religion Day By Day

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

LABELS, INSTEAD OF JAM

Mailed by an alluring advertisement, I bought a book purporting to contain the world's mass of religious literature. Imagine my disappointment, and indignation, when I found this book to be merely a clumsy hack writer's summary of great stories. They were not at all the masterpieces of religious literature which I had expected to be given only a label, when he asked for a jar of jam.

Forgive us, patient Father, that we so greatly neglect the Book that reveals Thy mind; may it be our daily communion. Amen.

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Now that French-Canadian soldiers are in barracks at Aldershot, truly brothers in arms with their fellow Canadians of British descent, it is interesting to recall that 100 years ago (Jan. 9, 1840) Queen Victoria personally signed messages of thanks to officers and men of Lord Elgin's Highland Brigade for their magnificent display of loyalty to the British crown.

Many of the British element, especially in Montreal, had been tempted by the economic distress to propose a rupture of the British connection and a request to the United States for absorption, the movement culminating in the famous Greenback revolution of 1863.

The signers of that document were several English-speaking officers of the militia (who were deprived of their commissions).

At once the officers of the 1st and 2nd battalions, of Dorchester; of the 4th of Kamouraska and of the Regiment de Quebec sent pledges to Lord Elgin of their loyalty to the British crown, and their willingness to shed their blood in support thereof if necessary.

These pledges reached London in due course and were submitted to the Queen at a privy council held on this date in 1850, and Her Majesty instructed the colonial secretary to tell Lord Elgin:

"It has afforded Her Majesty great satisfaction to receive these expressions of that loyalty and attachment to the British crown which she trusts is generally felt by her Canadian subjects." And later the Queen sent her personal letters to the French-Canadian officers.

Your Health — By Dr. Frank McCoy

One of the symptoms commonly encountered among those with digestive disorders is belching. This is usually due to the use of too large a quantity of food, or to a fault in the stomach. Occasionally it will follow the use of some particular article of food, such as cucumbers or green onions.

Another common symptom of digestive disorders is the thought of the patient refers to as heartburn. By this he means a sour, burning pain, often created, has to be satisfied. One moral of Russia's tactics against Finland is that just and humane relations between nations can never be developed from social systems, whatever their political color, which deny the rights and destroy the integrity of the individual human being.—Yorkshire Post.

This is another of a series of hands played by the new champion at the national tournament at Pittsburgh.

ing lead choice is noteworthy. The average player would lead a club, the solid rest, and declarer would make the contract.

Mr. Young thought it would be worth breaking the diamond tenace to get a look at dummy. She then shifted to the four of hearts. After another lead, declarer could have taken out tricks and given up one heart by playing the ace, easily winning 10 tricks; but, if he failed to play the heart, he would be returned, and North would get a heart ruff when South gained the lead with the ace of trumps.

Sending this situation, declarer put up the heart ace and then led a small heart. North returned a small club, bringing out the 8 to king. Declarer then took out trumps.

Now how Mr. Young's labors for the defense were not over. On the third trump round, she brilliantly discarded the queen of diamonds. The object was to compel North to save the guarded lack of diamonds, as he is so that South could discard all of her diamonds and escape a squeeze.

PLAYERS SCORE AT EMPIRE IN CHARLES, KING

Colbourne and Jones Perform Shows Dramatic Powers

Maureen Colbourne and Barry Jones, two of the most popular actors ever played the boards of Edmonton theatres, came into their own in this city as never before when, at the Empire Theatre Monday night, they appeared in Charles, King.

Mr. Jones scored as never before, as the role in which he appeared—the title role—gave him greater dramatic and histrionic opportunity than any previous role here.

Therefore the production of Charles the King brought forth and gladness to the hearts of the many admirers of this splendid, happy and enduring comedy.

Mr. Colbourne and Barry Jones, Charles the King will be repeated Tuesday night and while the company remains until Wednesday night, it must be noted that for the Wednesday matinee and evening performance the vehicle will be James Bridles Tobias and the Angel.

Charles the King is one of the most intensely dramatic, moving and memorable plays ever staged here. It is replete with historical interest and deals with a colorful period when Britain had its one and only encounter with a dictator—the time of Oliver Cromwell. The play tells with vivid and deft language and scenes, how Charles the King, rather than yield his monarchical rights to the dictator Cromwell, chose execution by beheading.

Around this theme, Mr. Colbourne has woven a play of dramatic depth and emotional quality that commands it highly. The action moves rapidly, surely and convincingly at all times.

There are 13 scenes in this truly stupendous production and many famous acts and many historical characters move through the play. Jessica Tandy, outstanding London actress as Queen Henrietta Maria gave a sympathetic and thoroughly convincing performance. It would be difficult to receive of any interpretation of this exciting role.

Maureen Colbourne, as the Earl of Stafford, as he always does, gave a deeply moving performance which, despite its relative smallness, was made a stand-out by his artistry.

And the rest of the company, each and every role in capable hands. Each character had an admirable player. From among the galaxy of talent one might mention Patrick Laidlaw, as Malind; Lawrence Murray as the Archbishop of Canterbury; Stanley Lathbury as Dr. Harvey Cyril Gardner, as Herbert, and others.

Here is a play that should not be missed. It will be repeated Tuesday night.

NORTHLAND TRAPPER IS REPORTED NAZI VICTIM ON VISIT TO HOMELAND

That the Nazi pre-war activities extended far into Canada's north is indicated by a story concerning Lawrence Sylvester, a former resident.

Sylvester was German born and the son of a Canadian settler, who was killed in 1918 he moved to Athabasca mining area in quest of employment and trapped in the Fond du Lac area this winter. Later he opened a shoe shop in Goldfields and also was employed by C. M. & S. on the hydro project at Wellington and Tatin lakes.

Sylvester was known to be anti-Nazi and much against the Hitler regime.

About 16 months ago Sylvester received a passage from his uncle with an invitation to return to Germany and visit his parents and relatives. Prior to accepting the invitation, he appeared before Judge Bence and took his oath of allegiance, making application to become naturalized. Sylvester returned to Germany, leaving some compensation checks with Chris Christensen to insure him a return passage.

While in Germany he wrote several letters, telling how hard conditions were in that country under the Nazis.

He is quoted as stating, "Hitler certainly has made one hell of a mess of Germany. ... Canada is Heaven compared with this." Also residing near Goldfields about this time were two brothers of German extraction known to be gronch. They trapped the Tatin lake area. Some

Australia Gets Ready to Send Both Food and Men

Prepared to assist the Mother Country and her sister dominions to the limit in carrying on the war, Australia is ready to send food and other essential commodities, as well as men and munitions. Illustrative of this all-embracing effort is the picture at top. While an armored car section of the Australian army holds training manoeuvres on the road, a farmer continues his harvesting operations in his fields near Wimmera, Victoria. At lower left a group of officers are pictured as they arrived at one of the central training camps, to take over the job of drilling recruits for the new Australian expeditionary force. At right a detachment goes through a gas mask drill at Mount Martha, Victoria. So far only aviation units have been sent overseas, but if the call goes out for more men to take their places in the front lines, Australia will be ready with a modern trained and equipped force.

Finnish Women Back Up Men at Front

Finnish women have always helped their men in time of war, but never have they been as well trained and organized as now. More than 100,000 of them, members of the Lotta Svärd organization, back up the work of the army by collecting money, aiding in hospitals, working as air raid wardens and taking over men's jobs at home. Closest to the front are those that work in Karelian field kitchens, above, specializing in broths, stews and porridges.

Every Lotta Svärd member in the field means one more Finn to hold a rifle or load a cannon. Athletic, cultured and capable, these Finnish women man the home line of defence in wartime in a unit as well organized as the army itself. Though much of their work is behind the lines, the soldiers of Finland best know them for their work in hospitals, canteens and field kitchens. Fresh milk, above, is one of many nourishing foods supplied by Lottas to fighting men.
